NO. 291

LONDON PRESS ON THE CANAL BILL.

Says That the Rights of Great Britain are Ignored.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—The adoption by the United States of the Davis amendment to the Hay-Pauncefote treaty yesterday is evidently regarded as far too slightly a matter for hurried comment by the London morning journals.

According to the Times and some of the other papers they will postpone until tomorrow their editorial treatment of the question in its present phase. The Daily Chronicle, however, publishes a short notice in which it says:

"The news is very serious. Indeed, it means, in a word, that the Anglo-American relations of the United States Senate have triumphed and that we are back again today where we were at the time of the Venezuelan imbroglio, and President Cleveland's insolent and provocative message. The latter feeling manifested during the Spanish-American war has been shaken by pro-British sympathizers; it is now swamped by self-interest.

"The Americans intend to fortify the canal in spite of treaty negotiations to the contrary. We cannot possibly stand by and allow the Hay-Pauncefote treaty to be thus imperiously set aside. The good relations between the two countries must of necessity be gravely menaced. This is the outcome of Mr. McKinley's resolution. Worse could have hardly happened if Mr. Bryan had been returned."

The Daily Graphic remarks: "We have no doubt as to the result. Anglo-American statesmanship will find an amicable solution of the difficulty created by American inaction. We will see, however, how the Hay-Pauncefote treaty can be got rid of without the loss of honor."

DISMEMBERMENT SURE TO BE CHINA'S FATE.

Missionary Declares That in His Opinion the Empire is Doomed to Go to Pieces.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—China is on the verge of partition. There is no way by which the integrity of the nation can be sustained. Such was the conclusion of the address given last night by Dr. William C. Noble before the People's Club. Dr. Noble was stationed at Peking for 15 years by the American Board of Foreign Missions and made his escape shortly after the first uprising of the Boxers. In the course of his remarks Dr. Noble also said:

"There is no telling how the negotiations with the Chinese officials are going to result. No document signed by the Emperor or stamped with the great seal has yet been received by the representatives of the powers. Indeed, there is nothing in the attitude of the great foreign nations involved in this trouble that shows they really purpose to reconstitute the empire."

GANS' FIGHT WITH M'GOVERN A RAW FAKE.

The Negro Lays Down in the Second Round—Terry Not a Party to the Job.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—The Times-Herald in its account of the McGovern-Gans fight says:

"In a bout heavily scented with crookedness Terry McGovern became the light-weight champion of the world at Tattersall's last night by putting Joe Gans into a state of apparent helplessness in two minutes and five seconds after the opening of the second round.

"Singularly enough the result of the contest confirmed in every respect to the suspicious betting offered Wednesday and repeated last night at the ringside by men who passed through the audience with handfuls of bills offering the false odds of even money that Gans would be knocked out by the Brooklyn terror."

Referee George Siler admitted that the fight had a bad look. He did not see any blow that should have put Gans into a state of grogginess in the first round. If Gans actually made his best showing last night he is so far outclassed by McGovern that no other light-weight on earth need ever expect to equal Terry in a flimsy encounter.

In a signed statement to the Times-Herald Terry McGovern says:

"I did not 'fake' that is a certainty. I tried to finish the fight as soon as I possibly could, but I must confess the result was somewhat of a surprise to me."

Joe Gans in a signed statement to the same paper says:

"The better man won. That is all I can give in explanation of the result. I didn't lay down. I was hit hard early in the fight and that seemed to take the wind out of me. I don't think there is any one who can stand up before McGovern at the light-weight limit."

SMALL CYCLONE STRIKES THE CITY AND DOES A GREAT DEAL OF DAMAGE

Church is Blown Down in Berkeley—Judson Works are Damaged—Narrow Escape of the Steamer Bay City—Wires are Down in All Directions—Lively Scenes on the Water Front.

King storm with all his pranks and depredations broke loose again this morning, and for the third time during the present season played havoc with trees, fences, wires, telegraph and telephone poles, such as Oakland has never before experienced.

Even a house was blown down at Berkeley.

Threatening clouds hung over the city during the past few days, as if announcing the approach of the third storm of the season, and after a copious downpour over night the storm broke loose with a semi-cloud burst, shortly after 9 o'clock this morning, followed at 10:30 with hail, thunder, lightning and wind at unusual velocity that lasted fully twenty minutes.

In that short time a great amount of damage was done.

TELEPHONE POLES DOWN.
The territorial system of telephone wires running from the bath houses at West Oakland to the Oakland pier, where the wires connect with the cable for San Francisco, was completely disabled.

Twenty poles of the Sunset Telephone and Telegraph Company and the Western Union Telegraph Company, along the mole, were blown down, the wires all tangled and after 10:30 o'clock no further communication by wire could be had with San Francisco.

A force of men was immediately detailed to the scene, and every effort is being made to arrange matters so that communication might be re-established late tonight.

HORSE KNOCKED DOWN.
On Twelfth street, between Chestnut and Linden, a telephone wire was down when a dairy wagon happened along. The horse was struck on the nose by the wire, and there proved to be sufficient current to the dangling obstruction to throw the animal to the ground.

TELEPHONES BURNED OUT.
During the height of the wind's velocity and while lightning flashed almost incessantly for ten minutes, wires were crossed near Twenty-seventh avenue and East Sixteenth street, causing a 'phone to burn out near by.

At 11 o'clock an alarm from box 65 summoned the Fire Department to the residence of H. E. Miller, 1015 Chestnut street, where a telephone had also been found ablaze.

Later two other telephones were reported afire in the same neighborhood. But in all of these cases the damage was nominal.

CHURCH IS BLOWN DOWN IN BERKELEY.
St. Matthew's Episcopal Mission at Russell and Grove streets, Berkeley, was completely wrecked during the storm. It seemed to receive the full fury of the wind and was literally torn to pieces.

The roof was blown off and carried up Russell street a distance of 100 feet where it fell with a crash.

Next the wind tore the sides of the building to splinters and scattered the pieces for blocks.

No one was in the building at the time.

A peculiar freak of the wind was that while it made kindling of the roof and walls of the building it left the furniture within practically intact.

The loss is estimated at $1,500.

LUMBER IS THROWN ABOUT LIKE CHIPS.
At Adams' Wharf the storm played particular havoc, and it seemed as though for a while the lumber was defying against the wind.

Large timbers were flying, through the air, and that no one was killed is perhaps due to the fact that the heavy rain cleared the wharf of lumbermen, laborers, etc., who sought shelter wherever they could.

Stone Bros' lumber yard at the wharf looks like a wreck.

The building of the California Development Company also located on Adams' Wharf was badly damaged. The tarred roof was almost entirely torn off.

Passengers were jostled together, and then the steamer keeled their way a mad rush to climb to the windward, their fears being no longer concealed. On the lower deck and through the port holes the water rushed in torrents, and the fires had a narrow escape.

Instantly the alarm was rung to stop the engines, and when these ceased thumping many breasts came near following suit, for it was earnestly feared that the old boat had foundered.

Presently, however, the Bay City began returning to her equilibrium, and after a few moments' delay proceeded safely on her journey.

Word was received from the Judson Iron Works at Livermore to the effect that one of the big smoke stacks was demolished and that a portion of the roof covering the works was torn away.

At the Judson Iron Works the box piers' shed was blown down, three smoke stacks were ruined and the ventilator roof of the cannery was blown off, part of it being carried over a hundred feet as it was. No one was injured, but the mills were closed down at 11 o'clock.

The damage to the works will probably reach several hundred dollars.

SIGN BOARDS WRECKED ALL OVER CITY.
Along Seventh street, nearly all the way from Market street to the city's western extremity, whatever Sibley & Greene's big sign boards graced the street, they were blown down. The firm's damage will be considerable.

BIG CHIMNEY TOPPLES OVER ON FRANKLIN.
A loud crash startled the neighborhood in the 200 block of Franklin street, just after a sharp cluck of thunder.

The cause of the crash was the tumbling down of a high chimney from the top of the residence at 374 Franklin street.

BAY CITY HAD NARROW ESCAPE.
The trim and speedy ferry steamer Bay City had a very close call to being capsized opposite Goat Island during the storm on the bay this morning.

The Bay City left this side for San Francisco at 9:45. At the start the crew were sanguine about the storm. The ferry steamer rolled and plunged and swayed, until there were but few among the many passengers who believed that they would ever reach San Francisco safely.

Men clung fast to posts and railings; some for the first time in their years of travel on the bay became seasick, and women screamed and many silently prayed.

As the Bay City reached a point about opposite Goat Island, but considerably out of her course she struck against a buoy and broke away the attachment. Here the storm raged a veritable and keeled almost completely over to one side.

NEWS NOTES FROM TOWN OF ALLENDALE.

ALLENDALE, Dec. 14.—The donation social last Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Kennedy was a pronounced success. It was under the auspices of the Epworth League, and was for the benefit of the Fred Finch Orphanage. Large donations of groceries and useful articles were made. A feature of the social was a literary and musical program under the direction of Miss Eleanor Williams, chairman of the social department of the league. Among those who participated were: Messrs. Myerson and Marshall, violin solos; Mr. Shepherd, vocal selections with violin accompaniment; Mr. and Mrs. R. F. McKinney, and the Misses Williams, vocal duets; Miss Lizzie Schmittler, vocal solo; Miss Ruth Lane and Joseph Davis, recitations; Mrs. Kennedy and Miss Schmittler, dialogue.

The following were elected officers of the Redwood Road Improvement club at a meeting held last Saturday evening: R. E. Harmon, president; Mr. Wells, vice president; Fred Fitch, secretary; E. Nygren, treasurer.

The committee in charge of the Christmas entertainment is making provision to provide for eighty-four children of Alameda.

Mr. and Mrs. George Embert have moved into their new home on the Westfall tract.

Surveyors are at work laying out streets and dividing the Rooney tract into town lots. The property will soon be placed on the market.

INSANE PEOPLE AT RECEIVING HOSPITAL.

J. M. Schrey of 681 Pacific avenue was recommended for commitment to a State insane asylum today by Drs. Webster and Melrose. He imagines he sees faces on the walls of his rooms and that he is to be electrocuted. He told the physicians today that he was destined to go to the Philippines, where he is to be shot. His wife, he said, was to follow him and would meet a similar fate.

Miss Annie Daly also occupies one of the insane wards at the Receiving Hospital. She believed people sit on the fence surrounding the back yard of her home and make faces at her. This, she says, disturbs her slumbers.

The funeral of Mrs. C. E. Hurd will be held from the family residence Sunday, the 16th, at 2 P. M. Interment private. Mrs. Hurd has been a resident of Oakland for thirty years and has been prominently identified with the charitable and religious life of the city. Her loss will be greatly mourned and regretted by a large circle of friends and acquaintances. Mrs. Hurd was the mother of the late Mrs. Chas. Holbrook of San Francisco and Horatio Hurd of Sacramento. The children who survive her are Samuel Hurd of Astoria, Oregon, and Frank M. Hurd of Oakland.

HAYNE CANNOT TRAP THE EXPERT.

Engineer Kiersted Stands By His Figures in the Water Case.

The proceedings in the water case today were in harmony with the weather outside—dull and dreary. A driving rain beat against the Court House and sharp gusts of wind rattled the shutters; there were no spectators in the lobby, and the cross-examination of Expert Kiersted was a monotonous raking over of his previous testimony without apparent result.

The effort to break down the consistency of his theory of valuation having failed, Attorney Hayne tried the witness regarding his actual knowledge of the price paid for labor and material and other details of actual construction. Also as to what he personally knew of the disbursements for operating expenses and the amounts paid for various pieces of real estate.

Mr. Kiersted said he had not made a study of those details because the information was too imperfect to make the basis of an estimate of the actual cost of each portion of construction. He had therefore estimated cost by an analysis of the gross receipts and disbursements, and had arrived at the amount of the investment by segregation of the letter from the former.

VALUE OF ALVARADO PLANT.

Mr. Kiersted said the valuation of $120 per million gallons placed on the Alvarado water included the pumping plant, mains and distributing system. The same principle had been applied in valuing the old Contra Costa plant.

Mr. Kiersted said he had used the cost of developing the San Leandro water as the measure of value because he considered impounded water to be the governing factor in the water supply of Oakland. Under the conditions existing here it would always be the largest and surest source of supply. It is therefore the controlling factor in estimating the value of water supplied to this city.

This was in reply to Hayne's inquiry why he had not first ascertained the cost of developing the Alvarado water and then applied that as the measure of value of San Leandro water. He added that there was another difference between the two which prevented cost of developing Alvarado water as the standard of value for San Leandro water. All the Alvarado water had to be pumped, whereas the San Leandro water was gravity supply. In estimating the value of Alvarado water he had made allowance for the cost of pumping. He insisted, however, that the larger and surer supply should be taken as the standard in valuing product.

RATES OF INTEREST.

Attorney Hayne returned to the interest question, asking the expert how it was that the valuation based on a 7 per cent rate of interest was higher than the valuation based on a 6 per cent rate.

"It comes from the unpaid interest. Computing on the basis of 7 per cent interest, the amount of unpaid interest is much larger than on a 6 per cent basis."

"Do you think the stock and bondholders should be allowed the same rate of interest?"

"I think the stockholders should be allowed a considerably higher rate of interest than the bondholders, because, I understand it, they take much greater risks, and their investment is not nearly so safe."

"What would be your valuation based on a 5 per cent rate of interest?"

"It will take fifteen or twenty minutes for me to make the computation," replied the expert, "and I would much rather do the work outside."

"While you are about it give me your valuations based on a 4 per cent rate and a 3 per cent rate," said Hayne. "They would show much different results than the one reached on the 6 per cent method, wouldn't they?"

"They would, but I have not considered things that are impossible and which did not happen and could not happen. The rate of interest of the bonded debt was 6 per cent, and I made my computation of the whole investment on that basis, although a larger rate should have been allowed the investment from stock sales, all things considered."

This matter of the hypothetical valuations was deferred until the expert had leisure to engage in the intellectual part-time of tomorrow morning between 1:35 and 1:55 at 2, 4 and 5 per cent interest.

GOT HIS FINGERS BURNED.

Hayne got his fingers burned in his persistent efforts to make it appear that the expert had selected as initial periods for his computations years that would make the most favorable to the company.

"Why did you select 1899 as the year for estimating the value of water on the basis of income?" he asked.

"Because it was the only year that the system as constituted at present was operating."

Witness further stated he had not used the actual amount of revenue as the basis of his calculation, but computed revenue based upon 9 per cent gross on the investment, 3 per cent for operation and maintenance and 6 per cent interest.

"Why did you begin your computation on the basis of revenue with the year 1897—why did you not take some other year?"

"Because that was the first year that the San Leandro reservoir had become a full and integral part of the operating system of the Contra Costa Company."

"Do you not know that the San Leandro reservoir was completed in 1895?"

"Yes, but I made a year's allowance for the full effect of the addition of that source of supply to be felt on the revenues."

"If you had begun with 1895 the computed revenue would have been smaller, wouldn't it?"

"I couldn't say, as I made no computation as regards that year."

"Can't you say that it would be much smaller?" said Hayne, teasingly.

"I would not say without a calculation."

"You can tell at a glance, can't you, that it would be smaller?" persisted the lawyer.

"I prefer to make a computation first," replied the expert. After figuring a moment, he said: "It would be considerably larger."

There was a general grin at Hayne's expense, and the discomfited attorney turned his head into another channel.

The lawyer produced a printed copy of a paper on the valuation of water works read several years ago by Mr. Kiersted before the American Society of Civil Engineers, and made a valiant effort to show that the views expressed therein were different from the principles laid down by the expert in his testimony, but the attempt was rather fruitless. Mr. Kiersted said that paper was a generalization and not a scientific academic in character.

"Do you wish to modify the opinions you have expressed in this paper?" asked Hayne with a snarl.

"I would not say that. In specific instances where I have had an opportunity for insight and access to definite information those opinions would not apply, while in other cases they might. Those expressions must be taken in connection with the context, for their meaning is explained by the conditions set forth."

After a little more banter on the subject Hayne dropped the subject and a recess was taken till 1:55 o'clock.

HOME POLICE COURT METHODS.

At the opening of the afternoon session Hayne furnished a sample of his methods by asking Mr. Kiersted if he had a memorandum relating to the price of iron. Witness said he had, and immediately the attorney seized upon the memorandum with the announcement that he proposed to examine it as a matter of personal curiosity, or rather to search through it for the purpose of securing something that he might use.

McCutcheon objected to the witness being examined in regard to prices of iron when no question relating to the cost of material had been asked in direct examination.

"Where those prices used in any way in making up your report?" asked the Judge.

"Do they have a bearing on anything you have testified to?"

"No."

"I cannot see why the memorandum is admissible on cross-examination," said the court.

"I only want to inspect it," said Hayne. "He might as well demand an inspection of the witness' private correspondence," exclaimed McCutcheon. "It is a private memorandum belonging to the witness without bearing on anything in direct testimony."

"I am entitled to inspect it if the witness does not object," persisted Hayne. "Counsel has no right to place the witness in that position," replied McCutcheon, "and I object to the time of the court being taken up with the inspection of private papers that have no bearing on the case."

AN OFFENSIVE DISPLAY.

"May I not look at it, Mr. Kiersted?" persisted Hayne.

"I object to that," interrupted McCutcheon. "I don't know what the memorandum contains, but counsel should not interfere a personal matter of this kind into the case."

"I only want to look at it," said Hayne, walking up to the witness. "Do you object to my doing so, Mr. Kiersted?"

"Personally I have no objection," said the engineer, "but as Mr. McCutcheon objects I would say no."

"Do you say no?" persisted the lawyer. "It is my private memorandum and I do not see why it should be submitted to inspection. If you insist I must say I would rather not. As a matter of fact, from 1899 down it represents a compilation made by the United States Labor Commission—a public record. From 1899 back to 1891 it represents a compilation of my own, and the paper you have there that I read before the American Society of Engineers contains them."

"Then you refuse," said Hayne, with an ugly snarl. "It shows the bias of the witness."

"It shows nothing of the kind," retorted McCutcheon. "Because witness declines to permit counsel to inspect his private papers cannot be said to be bias."

"Oh, that's too cheap," rejoined counsel. "It certainly does not show bias."

his honor, and this closed an offensive display of impertinence. The incident grew out of the fact that the special attorney had caught a glimpse of the memorandum among the expert's papers.

WHAT DETRIORATION MEANS.

Detrioration was the next subject of cross-examination. The expert said he did not call ordinary wear and tear detrioration in the sense he had used it in his estimate. He assumed that a piece of pipe was worth what it cost to lay it so long as it performed the service for which it was laid. Although depreciated in value it did not become an element of detrioration until it had completely worn out and had to be replaced. Where partially worn pipe was taken up to make room for larger pipe and subsequently relaid, the cost of laying the new pipe, less the value of the pipe relaid, should be charged to construction. Detrioration represented something that had actually become unserviceable. If replaced it must be provided for out of the revenues; if abandoned it should be charged to detrioration, provided the original cost had been provided for in the income.

Yesterday's Proceedings.

When THE TRIBUNE went to press yesterday Expert Kiersted was still on the stand.

From 1891 to 1899 the proposition of operating expenses to gross revenues was abnormally large because there was a great falling off in receipts due to low rates. The average annual expense for operation and maintenance, figured by the expert, was $100,000.

"If your percentage is radically wrong, is not your whole conclusion radically wrong?" asked Hayne.

"I do not think it possible for it to be very far out of the way."

On motion of Hayne the answer was given to the question asked by Mr. Kiersted: "Of course if the percentage is radically wrong the conclusion must be wrong proportionately."

WHEN INTEREST STARTED.

Mr. Kiersted said he had dated his interest account from 1896 because some thing must have been done prior to 1896. The company began collecting water rents in 1896, therefore the company must have had some sort of plant in operation prior to that time.

"Might not that income have been derived from some other source?"

"The statement shows that it was derived from water rents."

Witness could not be made to deviate from his assumption that there must have been construction and investment prior to the collection of water rents.

A FAIR RATE OF INTEREST.

Hayne asked a series of questions as to how the witness arrived at what he called a fair rate of interest.

"I have assumed 6 per cent to be a fair rate of interest," was the reply.

"But how do you arrive at the conclusion that it is a fair rate of interest?"

"I object," said Mr. Moore. "That is a conclusion of law and the witness is not called upon to determine it."

Hayne said he wished to test the expert's method.

"I regard it as a question of law myself," said Judge Hunt, "but the witness may answer it."

Mr. Kiersted said he made no deduction or demonstration to arrive at the rate of interest, but fixed 6 per cent as a fair rate for capital invested in water works property. He had assumed that rate to be a fair one for the whole period, though it was lower than the market rates prevailing during the earlier years.

In regard to the capitalization of the Alvarado plant Mr. Kiersted said he had used 9 per cent as the basis.

"Why did you do that?"

"I estimated 8 per cent as the cost of operation and 6 per cent as interest on the investment."

"From the report of the United States Commissioner of Labor, which contains a compilation embracing thirty-four private gravity plants. The average cost of operation and maintenance was placed at 8 per cent. It is the best compilation, I think, that was ever made."

"You did not consider any municipal plants?"

"No, for the reason that the income is partly derived from water rents and partly from the proceeds of taxation. Therefore they do not represent a fair basis of comparison with a private plant."

Hayne showed a disposition to attack the report of the United States Commissioner. This is a very large volume and a copy of it was being rather ostentatiously fingered by one of the city's experts during the examination. Mr. Kiersted was still under cross-examination when court adjourned for the day.

ANOTHER VICTIM OF HAZING.

Northwestern University Boy Cruelly Tormented.

Associated Press Dispatches by
The Tribune's Special Leased Wire

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Frank Lust, a student in the Northwestern University Academy, was hazed last night by twelve students. He was taken from the university gymnasium, where he was practicing, to a secluded spot on the lake shore. Here he was blindfolded and his clothes removed. A coat of black ink and soft soap was then daubed over his entire body.

After the treatment of ink and soap the students lined up and compelled him to run the gauntlet.

He was rescued from one to another in the crowd, and each one took occasion to slap him about the body. After fifteen minutes of this kind of treatment he was wrapped up in blankets and taken to his home on Sheridan road.

The young man was nearly overcome from exposure and from the hard treatment he received, and fainted while being taken to his home. The students, however, managed to revive him before he was taken to his room.

Last week Lust received a threatening letter signed by several fictitious names, in which he was asked to watch out for his reputation.

All the hazing had been hitherto confined over the lower parts of their faces. The clothing they were wearing, however, was not so. The students, however, recognized several of his tormentors.

This is the second student at the academy who has been hazed within the past week. Last Friday night P. H. Sammeyer was visited in his room by half a dozen students and treated to a coat of dy pipe.

Dr. Herbert Fiske, principal of the Northwestern University Academy, returned to Evanston yesterday and will commence at once an investigation of the hazing of J. H. Sammeyer, a student in the academy.

Dr. Fiske will be assisted by the Northwestern University faculty, and states that the affair will be sifted to the bottom. None of the faculty so far as could be learned last night had heard of the hazing of Lust.

THEY ARE BANKRUPTS.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 14.—Max Apt and Morris Apt, trading as Apt Bros. of this city, have been adjudged voluntary bankrupts in the United States District Court. The liabilities of the firm are estimated at $112,000, and their only assets are said to be no wearing apparel valued at $200. Counsel said that the firm was obliged to become bankrupt on account of a fire which destroyed its place of business several years ago. The insurance companies in which the firm was insured, he said, refused payment of the indemnity and gave $20,000 or $20,000 less than the amount covered by the policy. The firm resumed business, but in about two months was obliged to make an assignment.

READY TO BUILD THE DEFENDER.

America Will Be Ready to Contest for the Cup.

Associated Press Dispatches by
The Tribune's Special Leased Wire

BOSTON, Dec. 14.—It is expected that the Cronin-Hill designs for the Lawson cup defender will be in the hands of the builder, George E. Lawley, by the last of this week, so that the work of laying down the boat will probably be completed before the first of the year, or about three weeks behind the Herreshoff boat. The lead, angle iron and the plating have already been ordered, and if there are no more delays the boat will be launched about the same time as the one at Bristol.

In fact, there is something like a race already between the two yachts. It looks now as if the Lawson boat would be built at the Atlantic works in East Boston, under the supervision of Mr. Lawley.

No dimensions will be given out until the boat is fully under way, but after that it is understood that free access will be afforded any one who desires to look at the work on the new boat.

BROADWAY MERCHANTS TO FIGHT ORDINANCE.

Ordinance 715, adopted May back in 1876 and amended in the early eighties, prohibiting the exhibition of goods, merchandise and wares on the sidewalks of Broadway as a misdemeanor punishable by fine not to exceed $100, is to be tested in the courts.

Morris Citron, a merchant at Ninth and Broadway, has been arrested by Police Captain Wilson for a violation of the ordinance; he has put up $5 bail, and the case will be tried in the Police Court January 3, 1901.

The ordinance in question distinctly relates solely to Broadway, and merchants on that street declare that its provisions are a gross discrimination of special privilege in favor of Washington street, where, whom the ordinance does not affect.

A number of Broadway merchants have accordingly determined to test the constitutionality of the ordinance and if possible have it declared void and of no effect.

SAYS MRS. LAMBERT'S MIND WAS NOT SOUND.

There was some sensational testimony given last afternoon during the hearing of the Lambert will, confined now on trial before Judge Phillips.

Dr. Maher, who attended Catherine Lambert during her last illness, when she made the will, testified that she was not the object of attack, was put on the witness stand by the contestants. He testified that Mrs. Lambert had not been in her right mind for weeks previous to her death and was undoubtedly insane at the time she signed the codicil to her will.

The attorneys for the proponents objected to the admission of the testimony on the ground that the doctor was divulging a professional secret and for the further reason that he was not shown to be an expert on insanity.

Judge Ellsworth reserved his decision on the points raised.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1900

The trust has raised the price of sugar five points. When those people want money they have the sand to go out and get what they are after.

It is evident that Mrs. Lease of Kansas has her womanly weaknesses after all, for she now sets up the wall that her husband does not support her.

Mrs. Langtry's recent husband has gone back to live with his parents. He is probably seeking a place where someone knows him well enough to call him by his own name.

A week or so ago Field Marshal Roberts was thrown from his horse while reviewing his forces, and now a similar accident has happened to our own Commander-in-Chief, General Miles. A broad smile spread over the face of the American nation at the time of the accident to "Bob," but it is now clearly a case of "horse and horse."

Om Paul is dropping off the map very fast, and it won't be long before he becomes a full-fledged member of the colony of has-beens. It was not, of course, to be supposed that the effervescent affection of the French people would last long, and as the other nations officially regard him in the light of handling a hot potato, it is not surprising that he is being dropped so soon.

A THRIVING INDUSTRY.

It is only a few years ago that the Democratic stump orators laughed to scorn the very idea of placing a tariff on tin. It was pointed out that there were only two or three mills in this country and that they were only in the experimental stage. The tariff was declared to be a hardship and was placed a burden on trade without rhyme or reason.

But the tariff was carried through a Republican Congress and although only twelve years have elapsed American tinplate has forced its way into the world's great markets. We are exporting now to Wales, the former tin-plate center. The tariff forced the largest mills in that principality to close down, and many of them removed their entire plants to this country, where they had their largest market. The business is now coming to the front as one of the greatest of American industries, and the fact that the Democracy was so vehement in its denunciation of the tin-plate tariff during the last campaign was a reflection upon its assertions of twelve years ago, when the same orators ridiculed the idea of nurturing an industry by the help of a tariff.

Verily, the Democracy has grown gray in the campaign of denunciation and protestation, but it does not gather wisdom from experience. It apparently is shadowed by an unkindly fortune as well as bad judgment, for its theories are always antagonistic to practical results.

PRACTICAL PHILANTHROPY.

Rev. D. O. Crowley of the San Francisco Youth's Directors, a Roman Catholic institution that has accomplished much good for homeless boys, has an article in the current number of St. Joseph's Union that shows the need of a State horticultural farm or school. We have an agricultural college that is doing good work, but it is in the nature of a book on the higher mathematics—incomprehensible to one who has not thoroughly mastered the elementary principles. What we now need is a school of practical agriculture. Our State University course is excellent for those who own lands or in time will become the land of states. But it is not enough. We feel the want of a school for farm hands, not proprietors—though many of the latter might take a course in the science of agriculture and horticulture with benefit to themselves and to the community.

Father Crowley has sent boys to farms, as to get an ill city boy into the country has always been recognized as the first step in his regeneration, but the plan in this instance has not always worked well. "On many of the farms where the boys remain," he says, "work is done in such a slipshod way that the young lads grow up with the loose, careless working methods of their employers. Such methods in every business lead to failure. And every failure of this kind does a great injustice to the country."

That is a strong point that we do not recollect hearing about before. A poor master makes an ignorant journeyman, and boys who are taught according to methods in vogue on some farms will unquestionably grow up to become the leaders of a country town or to join the discontented elements of the State.

While Father Crowley thus destroys the ideal of the street wall boy who becomes a prosperous country squire by transportation to rural scenes, he has a remedy for the evil and it is a good one. One hundred acres of good land in the fruit belt, with a practical man to instruct the boys in ploughing and planting would answer all the requirements, and there the pupils could learn something about weather and the climate, pruning trees and vines, and what else they need to know. Thirty thousand dollars would do it all, and if the institution thus established accomplished anything equal to the work of the Tennessee State farm, not another cent would be required to take care of it. Of course it would not be a reformatory, and thoughtless judges should be prevented from installing there any embryo criminals or promising young felons such as ruined the name of the Industrial School of San Francisco and the first training ship back in the 70's.

The California Farm and Orchard School ought to be established. It is practical and cheap and will accomplish much.

ADOPTING OUR METHODS.

For many years there has been a disposition on the part of the American people to disparage their own consular system and to laud those of other countries. However, conditions have greatly changed and our own methods in this particular are now being studied and copied by foreign governments, notably so by Germany. While the American representative abroad may not possess the superficial diplomatic training of the consuls of some other nations, he has that well-trained and keen eye for business which has been a material help in advancing our trade interests. There is not a chance for an American product to find a market but what these active agents of our Government at once report the fact to the proper department and public notice is given of the existing opportunity to those who are in a position to avail themselves of it.

The bespoken and beribboned diplomat of fifty or even twenty-five years ago is a hack number. Conditions have changed, and it is the man who is wide-awake to his country's commercial interests who holds the right of way. The American consular service is fast becoming the model of the world, for it is like a trained army, devoting its energies and talents to the advancement of the nation's interests. There is not a contract of any magnitude wherein the American manufacturer has a chance to enter into competition but the fact is made known, while a study is made of the products of other climes with a view to adopting them to our own country. It is diplomacy and business combined. It violates all the moss-grown traditions of statesmanship that we have set the pace and the other powers are following in our lead.

Our representatives were at first scorned and ridiculed for their trading instincts, but when the world got through with laughter it discovered to its horror that our Consuls had made it possible for the American manufacturers to enter every market on the globe and get away with the cream of the business. We are now a billion dollar exporting nation, and this great aggregate is a monument to the zeal, enterprise and patriotism of our foreign representatives. Again has the world become converted to Yankee ways, for it has had forced upon its consideration the fact that we are fast gathering in all the business worth having, and that the only way to compete with us is by adopting our methods.

Bryan says he is not a candidate for United States Senator, but that he has "other plans." This undoubtedly means that he is still, child-like, crying for the moon, in other words, he intends to make one more bid for that Presidency he can never get.

A Pittsfield man declares he came across a mushroom weighing eight pounds and three ounces. As this is a deviation from the customary fish story, the discoverer is at least entitled to credit for advancing something new.

Tulane has had a $1200 jewelry robbery from one of its uptown stores. That is hard luck, but they find in the incident an advertisement to show that they had something in town that was worth that much.

Burlap.

An enormous and increasing amount of burlap is used in this country—500,000,000 yards a year, it is said. Burlap is used for making bags, it figures in cat linings, and it is even entering, in dressed-up state, into wall coverings. But it is chiefly used for packing and wrapping, and with our increasing export trade great quantities of it are demanded.

No $50 gold pieces were ever coined by the Government of the United States although during the 2011th century of it in California a good many were coined by private parties.

Clerking

Looks more attractive than housework for a woman, but it is also even more exhausting. The work is often done under high pressure, and the brightness of the eyes and the faded cheeks and the attentive clerk indicate nervousness rather than health. If this is true under most favorable conditions, what shall be said of those who suffer from womanly diseases, and who endure headache, backache, and other pains day after day?

No sick woman should neglect the means of cure for womanly diseases offered in Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It regulates the system, drives out the poisons, cures catarrhs, inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"A heart overflowing with gratitude, as well as a sense of duty, urge me to write to you and tell you of my wonderful recovery," says Miss Caroline H. Hook, Orangeburg, Orangeburg Co., South Carolina. "By the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription I am entirely a new being compared with the poor miserable creature who wrote four months ago. I remain to my patients almost every day that it seems almost an impossibility for me to do a person so much good. During the whole summer I could scarcely keep up to walk about the house and garden. I walked four miles and felt better from the exercise. I now weigh 125 pounds. Mine was a complicated case of female disease in its worst form."

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness.

PERFORMANCE HAS BEEN POSTPONED.
Mrs. Ada Van Pelt's play, "The Quaker Sentinel," which was to have been produced at the Macdonough Theater tonight, has been postponed until the second week in January. Two of the leading characters in the play were taken suddenly ill. Tickets are good for the show in January.

Out of the Asylum.
Joseph Hayes the colored man who created a panic on the Oakland train some time ago by threatening to carry the passengers with a knife, has been released from the Stockton Insane Asylum. He was sent there early in November by Judge Hall, who believed the man to be crazy. While he was at the Receiving Hospital he told the attendants that he had consumed two quarts of whiskey just before he broke loose and that was all that ailed him.

Smash Your Mirror
You feel like it sometimes, don't you? It says, "My, but you are growing old fast." You know why it's those gray hairs. Don't you know that Ayer's Hair Vigor would restore color to them, all the dark, rich color they used to have? It stops falling of the hair also, and makes the hair grow long and heavy.

If you do not obtain the benefit you desire from the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor, we will refund the money. Address, Dr. J. C. Ayer, Lowell, Mass.

Free Insurance Against All Disappointment

How? By purchasing from us. If you buy something that does not exactly suit or that—well, something that does not give entire satisfaction, bring it back, exchange it for something else or get your money back—but in any event, get perfect satisfaction, for we are not satisfied till you are. Can anything in legitimate business be squarer? And this insurance against all risk is given you without any premium whatever.

A CHAT ON PRESENT-CHOOSING

It's not easy to know just what you want to give at any particular season. It's a study, and our increased corps of helpers have, we believe, learned their lesson well. Come and take them into your confidence and your task will be made easier. We have something—lots of something—for everybody.

A standing list—come early, come in the morning. The early pickers always get the biggest cherries. Lines are full now and shelves are creaking 'neath the weight of usefulness, attractiveness and novelty that they support. Come, while choosing is easy.

You are Too Busy Now to Read Wordy Ads

Read a volume at once by glancing at our nineteen show windows. There you will see hundreds of pretty and useful articles, all marked in plain figures—we have no hieroglyphics—and they will talk for themselves. We would, however, direct special attention just now to eight of these picture-ads.

ON WASHINGTON STREET

Window "A"—Scores of just the heady and ornamental things you are looking for in sterling silver and ebony. Words cannot do them justice but—COME AND SEE

Window "B"—A perfect panorama of fancy boxes, trays, etc., made of celluloid with gold-plated frames, wicker-work and ribbon and other novelties but—COME AND SEE

Window "C"—A snow-storm of plain and fancy handkerchiefs, with initial or without, for ladies, gentlemen, misses and children. We will say no more but—COME AND SEE

Window "D"—An exhibit of all that is new and desirable in leather goods—purses, silver-mounted and hand-carved. Just—COME AND SEE

ON TWELFTH STREET

Window "E"—Newest and noblest of ladies' neckwear—jabots, ruffs, ostrich boas, fichus, lussar fronts—perhaps not a single style you ever saw before—COME AND SEE

Window "F"—An array of fancy aprons in scores of delicate styles—pretty things of lace, embroidery and ribbons. All are—well never mind—COME AND SEE

Window "G"—This is a picture of pictures—pillow tops and finished pillows—too many to talk about, but—COME AND SEE

Window "H"—Battenberg goods and Irish point daintiness—scarves, squares, pincushion tops and but—COME AND SEE

OAKLAND LADIES WILL SEND PRESENTS.

Mrs. F. G. Sanborn of San Francisco, who is in charge of the Christmas bazaar which the Red Cross is preparing for the 25th and 26th of December, today at the General Hospital at the Presidio, had a consultation yesterday with Colonel Guard and Miss Cowan, the head nurse, with a view to ascertaining what the men most needed. As a result of this there is a call for a generous supply of books, and it is hoped that they will not be too many. There will be no end of gratitude for felt or woolen slippers. The only ones which can be got from the commissary department are of leather, and they are not at all suited for hospital use. The commissary men are in need of mittens to use when they sit out on the porches. They may be made of silk, or of some other material, and it is suggested that those who want to help out in this work might get some soft woolen material and make a number in the plainest way. They will be just as welcome as if they were hemstitched and embroidered. Individual gifts of books will always be suitable. Books of the 19th century are eagerly read and there are from 150 to 200 books of the Red Cross Library now in circulation. Books of soap, knives, match cases and tobacco are on the list of things that will be wanted. Of underclothes and stockings the soldiers have a sufficient supply, and instead of getting new ones, as at first recommended, buy the cheap handkerchiefs.

Oakland ladies of the Red Cross will also send presents.

WARRING UNDERTAKERS ARRAIGNED IN COURT.

The strained relations between Deputy Coroner Henry Quinn and George Masters, embalmer for Undertakers James McManis, caused over an unpleasant incident concerning possession of the remains of Antonio Gallardo, will be aired in the Police Court December 21st.

Each has had the other arrested on a charge of disturbing his peace and tranquility, and when they appeared in the Police Court, the matter was referred to the Police Court. McManis, by his attorney, W. H. O'Brien, demanded a jury trial, and Quinn will be tried by the Judge.

NOLAN WAS CRAWLING BENEATH WHEELS OF CAR

Barney Nolan, a plasterer, whose home is at 1214 Union Street, fell off a ladder at 12th and Adeline streets last night and injured himself severely. He struck his head on the hard pavement and cut a long gash in his scalp. The blow dazed him and in attempting to regain his feet he crawled directly toward the car wheels. A bystander noticed his misadventure and dragged him away from the danger. He was taken to the Receiving Hospital, where Warden Page dressed his wounds.

WALKED OUT.

On Food, After Being Given Up.

Lack of knowledge regarding the kind of food to give to people, particularly invalids, frequently causes much distress, whereas when one knows exactly the kind of food to give to quickly rebuild the brain and nerve centers, that knowledge can be made use of.

A young Chicago woman says: "Other instances of the wonderful qualities possessed by Grape-Nuts food are shown in my grandmother's and mother's cases. Grandmother's entire left side became totally paralyzed, from a ruptured capillary of the brain. The doctor said it would be impossible for her to live a week. She could not take ordinary food and we put her on Grape-Nuts, in an effort to do all for her we could."

"The astonishment of the doctor and the delight of all of us, she slowly rallied and recovered. It was pronounced the first case of the kind on record. The doctor said nothing could have produced this result but food."

"We had been led to use Grape-Nuts because of the effect on mother. She has been troubled with a weak stomach all her life, and the last few years gradually losing weight and strength. She has tried everything, almost, that has been recommended by good authority, and until she used Grape-Nuts food, nothing seemed to do her any good. Since taking Grape-Nuts she has been constantly improving until now she is free from any of the stomach troubles, and is strong and well. Please do not publish my name." Name can be given by Don C. Grant Co., Ltd., Little Creek, Michigan.
